BATTERS UP!

Brad Pitt throws a curve ball as manager Billy Beane in Moneyball.

—By Tom Jokic

In baseball, there's a commonly held belief that only the richest teams win championships - namely the New York Yankees. And yet, in the last ten years, the Yanks have only won the World Series once.

Moneyball tells the true story of a baseball manager that defies the theory that you have to spend big to win big. Brad Pitt stars as Oakland Athletics general manager Billy Beane, who managed to create a winning team with a budget that would barely cover the cost of chauffeurs for the Yankees. Beane's system offered a ray of hope for low-budget professional teams (and their fans) from all major sports.

Early in the film, Beane has a frank assessment of his team. "There are rich teams, then there are poor teams, then there's 50 feet of crap, then there's us." Helping out Beane is assistant general manager Peter Brand, played by Jonah Hill. Brand buys Beane's theory that no money doesn't necessarily mean no victories. The trick is to find skilled players who aren't high-priced stars. "I believe there is a championship team that we can afford because everyone else undervalues them," says Brand in the film.

Of course, changing long-held beliefs in a game as traditional as baseball is no easy feat, which is what gives this story its unique slant. Many baseball purists railed against Beane at the time, but then later embraced his system. In his own way, Billy Beane changed the face of professional sports.

If you're not a baseball geek, here's Billy Beane's system in a nutshell: Instead of paying big salaries to players with high batting averages, you get players who get on base a lot (high "on-base percentage"). The distinction seems like a minor point, but when you're dealing with millions of dollars in salaries on a small-market team, it could very well mean the difference between a team making the playoffs or being eliminated early. Just like any budget, whether it's a corporation or a sports franchise, the idea is to get more bang for your buck.

Rounding out the all-star cast is Robin Wright, Oscar winner Phillip Seymour Hoffman (as manager Art Howe) and Stephen Bishop as superstar David Justice (who, of course, is the ex-husband of Oscar winner Halle Berry). Directing the film is Bennett Miller, best known for helming Capote. Jonah Hill's character is based on real-life baseball man Paul DePodesta, who was excited about gathering eager but underappreciated players on one team "like an island of misfit toys."

The script, based on the bestselling book by Michael Lewis, is written by Oscar winners Steve Zaillian (Schindler's List) and Aaron Sorkin (The Social Network).

As for Pitt, his experience with the game is limited to playing with his sons - and one rather unfortunate event from his younger days. "I knew very little about baseball apart from taking one in the face in junior high," he told USA Today. The gash required 18 stitches and left a scar.

But the superstar actor still threw himself into the role - and was helpful to at least one of the younger actors on the set. Former baseball player Casey Bond, who plays one of the Athletics, recently told Hollyscoop.com that Pitt was great to work with. "He was an awesome guy," he told USA Today. "He was like a mentor on the set. He gave me advice every day." Bond was amazed at how "surprisingly normal" Brad and Angelina are. "A lot of people think they would be a big celebrity couple, which they are, but they are some of the most normal people I've ever met."

NOT YOUR AVERAGE JOE

Joseph Gordon-Levitt mixes drama with a twist of comedy in his new movie 50/50.

—By Toni-Marie Ippolito

Joseph Gordon-Levitt is every director's dream. Not only is he "that guy everyone loves," but he's also one of the few actors of his generation that fits seamlessly into any role he tackles. From playing a teenage hustler in Mysterious Skin to the charming romantic guy in 500 Days of Summer to a mind thief in the blockbuster Inception - Gordon-Levitt has become successful and famous for his charm, talent and versatility.

In his upcoming film 50/50 (written by Will Reiser based on his true-life experience), Gordon-Levitt takes on a dramatic role as a man who finds out he has a rare form of spinal cancer. But with the help of Seth Rogen (his best friend), Anna Kendrick (his inexperienced therapist) and Bryce Dallas Howard (his somewhat inconsiderate girlfriend), Gordon-Levitt and cast turn this depressing subject matter into a lighthearted film that's not only real, but funny.

You've managed to make that successful jump from child actor to a successful adult career. Are you conscious of that?

Gordon-Levitt: Yes, thank you. There was a time for a while after I was done doing 3rd Rock from the Sun where no one wanted to put me in any movies and I was very worried and depressed about it. But I really have to give credit to a few filmmakers who took a chance on me early on. At the end of my run on 3rd, Jordan Melamed, who made the movie Manic, cast me, and Manic was the movie Gregg Araki saw and then put me in his movie, Mysterious Skin - which Rian Johnson saw and put me in his movie Brick. When people saw Gregg and Rian's movies they started to believe I could do some acting besides teen comedies or sitcoms - not that there's anything wrong with teen comedy. I've had a lot of great experiences in that genre/format.

What was the appeal for you to star in 50/50?

Gordon-Levitt: This piece of writing is by a guy named Will Reiser, and this is his story. He actually did survive cancer and he is also a really funny guy. He runs with this funny posse of dudes, including Seth, so it only made sense after going through this horrible ordeal, they would convince him to write a funny movie about it, and I actually think it's a really healthy response.

Were you at all concerned about how you would portray him onscreen?

Gordon-Levitt: Yeah, it was great just to have him there; you know, not every movie has a screenwriter there onset while you're doing it. Will was on the set there all day, so that was a great resource for me. Talk about researching an actual character! I just had to hang out with the actual guy, and I did hang out with him all day while we were shooting and we would talk about every scene and how it felt, why it was funny but also what it meant to him on other personal levels as well.

Were you at all nervous about buzzing your hair for this?

Gordon-Levitt: That was our first day of shooting and I wouldn't call it nervous, but there's always that wave of anticipation and energy that comes with the first day of shooting. So it was a fantastic scene to do first. To do something like that - and it's true mostly with shooting movies, you have to be sort of safe, you have to sort of be able to repeat it and it's rare that they shoot something where they're like, "Well, we can only do this once and hope we get it," and that's what it was. Me and Seth actually shaved my head.

You've done some small films, but also big films like Inception, and you're now filming The Dark Knight Rises. Which do you like better?

Gordon-Levitt: Well, for me it isn't so much about the size of the movie. I just want to work on stuff where I feel creatively inspired, whether it's a movie like 50/50 or The Dark Knight Rises - they're both creatively inspiring. Yes, it's true, the movie I am working on right now is a huge, huge, huge movie and 50/50 is a smaller movie, but I guess I have eclectic taste. I take equal inspiration from them both.

The three friends must help Kermit reunite the Muppets and save the theater before it's gone for good.

Buzz: Jason Segel sent a video of himself and Kermit the Frog inviting Amy Adams to join the cast.

DANCE OFF

Julianne Hough and Kenny Wormald show off their dance moves in Footloose.

—By Katharine Watts

What happens when a teenage boy moves from the big city to a small town where music and dancing are banned? Everybody cuts loose.

Well, at least that's what happened in the 1984 film Footloose, and it's about to happen all over again in the remake. The only difference this time is a brand new cast of up-and-coming young dancers. And dance they do. Julianne Hough, the two-time winner of reality TV show Dancing with the Stars plays Ariel Moore, the beautiful reverend's daughter who catches the eye of the newcomer in town, Ren MacCormack, played by someone who's also no stranger to dancing – 27-year-old Kenny Wormald.

So while the film is all about a town where music and dancing are banned, based on the cast (well, and the original movie starring Kevin Bacon), there will definitely be dancing, at least once Ren shakes the townspeople up and makes them realize what they're missing.

Playing Ren would also mean living up to Kevin Bacon's role in the original film, which not only was a huge success, but also a cult classic. "We all knew what the original was, and we had the pressure of obviously not wanting to mess up, and wanting to make a great version of Footloose," Wormald told Elle magazine.

Well, we don't need to worry, because the thing that made the original so good was, naturally, the dancing – that, and the chemistry between Ren and Ariel. These two stars have both of those things down – especially because their training for the film started on day one. "We pretty much met and had to dance right away," Wormald told E! Online. "We're sweating and bumping into each other, so we became friends right away. No wall up. It was amazing," he said. Hough agrees, telling Elle that their chemistry is "really, really good in the movie."

Even though Hough and Wormald weren't born when the original Footloose was made, Hough admits she has a special connection to it. Growing up in Utah, where the original movie was filmed, Hough was familiar with the old set before she ever stepped foot on the new one. "I used to pass the roller mills where Kevin Bacon did the angry dance on my way to dance class," Hough told Entertainment Weekly. Not only that, but her brother Derek Hough (another DWTS alum) played Ren on stage in London. "There's all these little connections," she said.

HOT Couples

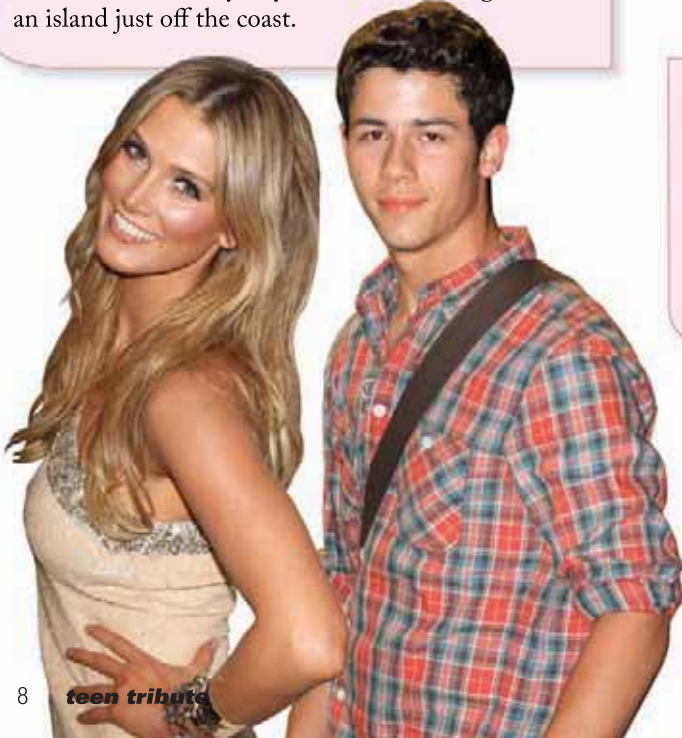

Despite break-up rumours, Blake Lively and Leonardo DiCaprio prove their romance is still blooming. The couple became public after DiCaprio's split from model Bar Refaeli was confirmed in May.

The Amazing Spider-Man co-stars Emma Stone and Andrew Garfield's onscreen romance has become reality. The two recently became public with their romance in May when Garfield ended his relationship with actress Shannon Woodward.

Age is just a number for Nick Jonas, 18, and Australian singer Delta Goodrem, 26. The couple were recently spotted in Bali in early June where they were attending a songwriting camp, and hit up The Beach Club at Sandy Bay on Nusa Lembongan, an island just off the coast.

The Last Song co-stars Miley Cyrus and Liam Hemsworth are officially back on. Hemsworth took a break from filming The Hunger Games to visit the songstress while she was on tour in Australia.

Teen pop star sensations Selena Gomez and Justin Bieber are young and in love. Bieber recently surprised his girlfriend on her 19th birthday by joining her on stage and serenading her with "Favourite Girl." He also performed Justin Timberlake's "Cry Me a River" for the fans at Gomez's concert in Costa Mesa.

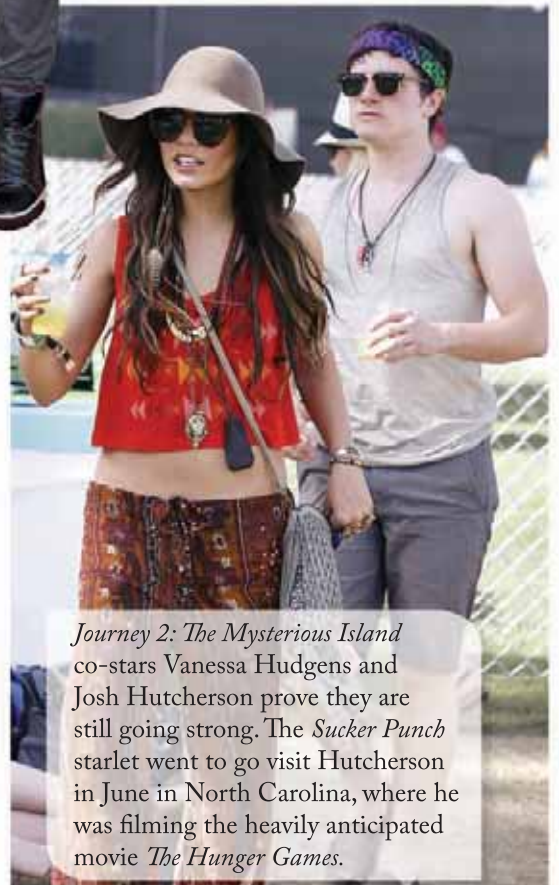

Taylor Lautner and Lily Collins met on the set of the upcoming thriller Abduction, and have been going strong ever since. In the movie, the pair play classmates who work on a school project that ends up changing Nathan's (Lautner) world around.

Robert Pattinson and Kristen Stewart were most recently spotted in July at Comic-Con as the two promoted their film The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn – Part 1. Robsten cuddled publicly in front of cameras but avoided answering questions about their relationship.

Emma Roberts and Glee hunk Chord Overstreet publicized their relationship in early July when the couple went shopping in London's Notting Hill. Overstreet flew straight to London after the "Glee Live In Concert" tour wrapped up in Dublin, Ireland.

Journey 2: The Mysterious Island co-stars Vanessa Hudgens and Josh Hutcherson prove they are still going strong. The Sucker Punch starlet went to go visit Hutcherson in June in North Carolina, where he was filming the heavily anticipated movie The Hunger Games.

Jason Derulo's new album

Jason Derulo is on a hot streak! Fans who rocked to his last album including the hits "Whatcha Say," "In My Head" and "Ridin' Solo," don't have to wait much longer for Derulo's next album Future History, which drops on September 27.

The singles from the album, "Don't Wanna Go Home," and "It Girl," are just two amongst an album that's set to a hit.

"The new album is a bunch of reinventions," he told Rap-Up. "I've experienced so much in these last two years, recording my first record when I was 19 years old and now I'm 21. I always write music based on what I go through, my experiences and the experiences around me. This album is very different from the last. The first single is very upbeat. If anyone's had a troubled day, just turn on this record and just relish in good music. But there are also songs on the album that are deeply emotional and vulnerable."

Girl Power!

We all know Katy Perry is cool, hip and pumps out infectious pop tunes, but with her latest single, "Last Friday Night," from the album Teenage Dream, Perry has hit a status no other has yet to accomplish: tying Michael Jackson for having five number-one hits from one album!

Perry celebrated the milestone on Twitter, writing,

"What a way to wake up! SO proud to announce that the little-engine-that-could of a song 'LAST FRIDAY NIGHT' is officially #1."

School of Rock

In my day, back-to-school season was also "time to start a band season." So this is for those of you who want to create music as well as listen to it. More and more artists who send in music looking for record deals these days are weakling photocopies of other artists.

Identity is key. Think about when a new song doesn't authoritatively demand your attention or evoke any desire to discover more: you click your mouse and leave. Some artists have it and some don't.

- At Lights' first show at the Drake Hotel in Toronto in 2007, her unique creativity broke through like a comet.

- Four years ago, when Abandon All Ships finished recording their first demo, a unique fusion of hardcore and electro, they caused a stir that led them to win this year's MMVA for best rock video.
- Bieber: Well, he is one of a kind too, isn't he? Please get out there and change the game by being you: When you do it your way, it pays off in spades. Just ask The Weeknd, Odd Future, Mac Millar, and Skrillex.

STAR SCOOP

TAKING IT OFF

Matthew McConaughey is officially on board for the upcoming film Magic Mike, co-starring Channing Tatum and Alex Pettyfer. The film is about a male stripper, Magic Mike (Tatum), who takes the new kid (Pettyfer) under his wing both on and off the stage. McConaughey will be playing an ex-stripper and the owner of the club where the boys dance. The film is loosely based on Tatum's pre-Hollywood stint as a male stripper.

CUTTING ALL TIES

After a frenzied divorce from her unfaithful husband, Sandra Bullock is willing to do anything it takes to be rid of him, even if that means cutting ties with his seven-year-old daughter Sunny. "Sandra doesn't communicate anymore with Sunny," the girl's mother told Us Weekly. "Sunny never talks about her." Bullock finalized the adoption of a baby boy, Louis, from New Orleans earlier this year and has been raising him as a single parent.

WEDDING WOES

Every bride wants her wedding day to be perfect, even if that means postponing the date. Jessica Simpson has postponed her big day to give herself and future hubby, Eric Johnson, enough time to shed some excess weight. Simpson hired top celebrity trainer Tracy Anderson a few months ago to help get her into shape, but blames a busy schedule for her slacking on her diet and exercise regime.

ROYAL TREATMENT

Reese Witherspoon's newest gal pal is none other than the Duchess of Cambridge and international style icon, Kate Middleton. The pair met at a charity event and instantly hit it off. They've apparently been calling and emailing back and forth. According to a friend of the actress, Middleton has always been a fan of Witherspoon's work.

ANTI-PLASTIC

Some of Hollywood's leading ladies, including Kate Winslet, Emma Thompson, and Rachel Weisz, are speaking out against plastic surgery. But Gwyneth Paltrow, mother of two, who referred to silicone and Botox as "vanity," wouldn't totally rule out a boob job. In an interview with OK! magazine, the 38-year-old all-natural actress said, "But a breast correction after breastfeeding - why not?"

Red Hot Ryan

With leading roles in two films at TIFF this year, Ryan Gosling shows his star power.

—By Chantel Simmons

Ryan Gosling is like a first love. You never forget the first time you laid eyes on him. The Cornwall, Ontario, native made his swoon-worthy mark in 2004 with The Notebook, winning the hearts of women everywhere. He made People's 50 Hottest Bachelors list and picked up every teen liplocking/couple award possible. Not a bad year. But then, instead of doing the expected and making a blockbuster comedy, Ryan chose to do Stay with Ewan McGregor, followed by Half Nelson, Lars and the Real Girl, and Blue Valentine, all off-the-beaten path roles and films. Each one garnered him dozens of award nominations and wins, proving he's not only one of the greatest actors of his generation, but one who's able to choose the right roles for himself.

"There is this idea in Hollywood, and I've seen it work for people, where the unspoken rule is 'Do two for them and one for yourself,'" Gosling has said. "And that's kind of considered a fact. I've never really found that to be true for me. I've gotten more opportunities out of working on things I believed in than I ever did on things that weren't special to me."

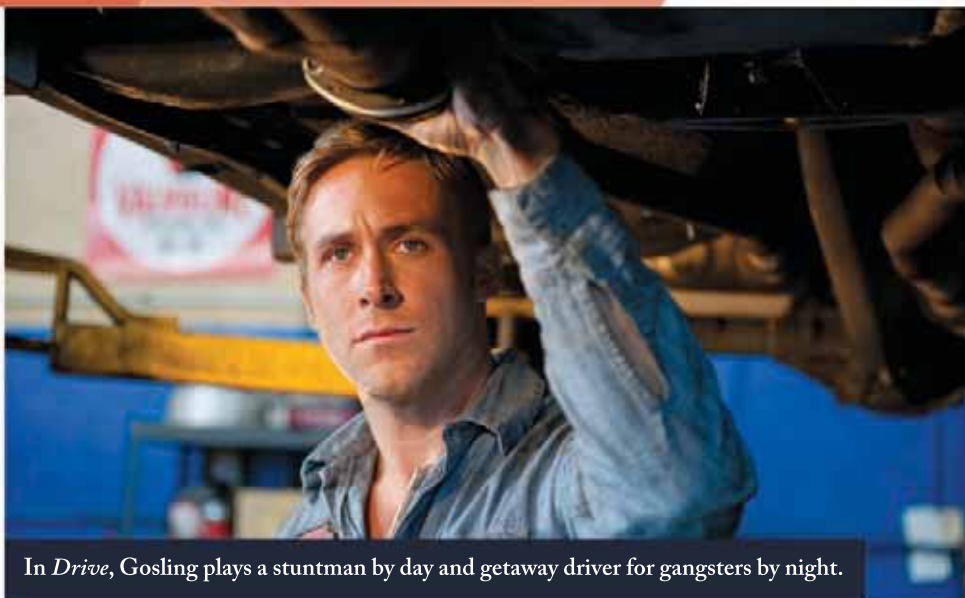

So when the opportunity to do a comedy – the right comedy – came along, Gosling took it, much to the surprise of fans and critics alike; he'd never done a comedy before. "After Blue Valentine I had to go to the doctor for a physical and when I left he gave me a prescription," Ryan told the Globe and Mail.

“He wrote, ‘Do a comedy.’ So I did.”

Doing a comedy could have been the worst decision of his career. But it wasn't. Crazy, Stupid, Love was a success, and so was Gosling as a smooth-talking womanizer opposite Steve Carell. More smart choices followed with his next two films, which will show at this year's Toronto International Film Festival: Drive and The Ides of March.

In Drive, Gosling plays “Driver,” a car stuntman turned wheel man for gangsters by night who gets double-crossed when a deal goes wrong. “The whole project was charmed in some way,” Gosling has said. “One of the producers, Marc Platt, said to me, ‘I’m never going to send you a script you won’t want to do. When I send you something I promise you’re gonna want to do it.’ Then a year later he sent me Drive; the second I finished reading the script I called him and said he was right.” Of course, he falls in love with his neighbour, who happens to be Brit darling Carey Mulligan.

Gosling then slides into a totally different role in The Ides of March, directed and co-written by George Clooney based on the play Farragut North. Gosling plays a press secretary who falls prey to dirty backroom politics as he works to get his candidate (Clooney) elected in a tight race. While Clooney plays the politician, Gosling is the star of the film, despite an all-star cast that includes Oscar-winning actor Philip Seymour Hoffman, Paul Giamatti, Marisa Tomei and Evan Rachel Wood. The film marks Gosling's third of the year, with three more in the works.

“I’ve learned it’s important not to limit yourself,” Gosling has said. “You can do whatever you really love to do, no matter what it is.” This is interesting, coming from the actor who told Tribute earlier this year that he never really wanted to work. “Every time I made a movie it just made me sick to my stomach, and I tried to do it as little as possible. But I’ve had a few really good experiences lately, so I’m feeling better about it, so I guess I feel like I’d like to work more.”

We’re glad he does, too.

In The Ides of March, Gosling plays a politician who gets tangled in a web of corruption while working for a Democratic presidential candidate played by George Clooney.

Star-Studded Power

Who's coming to TIFF? For this year's 36th annual Toronto International Film Festival, fans can expect the likes of George Clooney, Brad Pitt, Ryan Gosling, Jennifer Garner, Gerard Butler and many more to promote their new films. Here's some inside scoop about these stars and their new films.

Jennifer Garner will be promoting her new film Butter, in which she plays a housewife hell-bent on keeping her family's title of the "Iowa State Butter Carving Champion." The film also stars Olivia Wilde and Hugh Jackman.

Blake Lively's movie Hick is a road picture about a young girl who comes face to face with the realities of just how complicated adulthood can be. The film also stars Chloe Moretz, Alec Baldwin, Juliette Lewis, Eddie Redmayne and Rory Culkin.

Keira Knightley is likely to walk the red carpet for David Cronenberg's film, A Dangerous Method, which takes a glimpse into the turbulent relationships between fledgling psychiatrist Carl Jung, his mentor Sigmund Freud and Sabina Spielrein, the troubled but beautiful young woman who comes between them. The film also stars Michael Fassbender and Viggo Mortensen.

Gerard Butler will star in two films during the festival, the first being Machine Gun Preacher, the true story of Sam Childers, a former drug-dealing criminal who finds an unexpected calling as the savior of hundreds of kidnapped and orphaned children, as well as the Roman period piece Coriolanus.

Ryan Gosling will star with Carey Mulligan in Drive, based on a man who drives as a stuntman by day and steers getaway vehicles for heists by night. Gosling will also star in Clooney's The Ides of March, while Mulligan will also star in Shame at the fest.

Matthew McConaughey's movie, Killer Joe, follows the story of a 22-year-old drug dealer (Emile Hirsch) who, after his mom steals his stash, needs to pay off his supplier and realizes the only way is to hire "Killer Joe" (McConaughey) to kill his mom in order to get her $50,000 life insurance policy payout.

George Clooney will star and direct in The Ides of March about the frantic last days before a heavily contested Ohio presidential primary, when an up-and-coming campaign press secretary (Ryan Gosling) finds himself involved in a political scandal that threatens to upend his candidate's shot at the presidency. Clooney also stars in The Descendants.

Brad Pitt stars in Moneyball, based on a true story about Billy Beane, the general manager of the Oakland As, who takes an unorthodox approach to baseball after having an epiphany that all of baseball's conventional wisdom is wrong.

Madonna will more than likely come out to promote her directorial debut for the movie W.E., based on the life of two women: Wally (Abbie Cornish), an abused married woman who obsesses over American divorcee Wallis Simpson's (Andrea Riseborough) great love affair with Edward the VIII, who abdicated the throne for her.

Dustin Milligan puts his action skills to the test in Shark Night 3D

—By Toni-Marie Ippolito

Dustin Milligan is leaving the 90210 teen drama behind for an intense showdown with some fierce creatures in Shark Night 3D. Here, the Canadian star talks about filming his new thriller, what it was like filming with mechanical sharks, and being the “hot guy.”

Has 90210 opened doors for you?

Milligan: Oh, without a doubt. It’s certainly the largest audience I’ve been exposed to so far. That kind of show was so much fun to work on, and to be a part of that sort of hype and hoopla, it was quite exceptional for a northern Canadian boy like myself.

How cool is it to be in a movie like Shark Night 3D?

Milligan: Being from Yellowknife, to have been shooting in Louisiana in the swamps, in the water with mechanical sharks for two months, was unreal. It was unbelievable. I’ve never done a thriller like this, and I’ve never done a sexy beach movie like this and certainly never have punched sharks in the face!

It doesn’t hurt to be sexy in a movie, to be known as the “hot guy.”

Milligan: Well, they’re certainly going to try to portray me as such. I’m quite confident that my true dorky nature will inevitably peek through.

When you first read the script, what was it about it that really grabbed you?

Milligan: It’s a lot of fun and I think that’s what audiences want to see in a shark movie. People die, but it’s exciting, it’s intense and it’s really fast paced, which is always good. But yeah, it was a nice mixture of the thrasher horror and a lot of light moments. I think it will be pretty, pretty sweet!

You play Nick. What’s he’s like?

Milligan: Well, Nick is a sort of shy, reclusive type. I hesitate to use the word “nerdy” but for simplicity’s sake it’s the easiest term to use. He’s a pre-med student and follows a group of his friends to go to this lake house and as the events unfold as they do, he comes out of his shell and reluctantly accepts his role as hero of the night.

What was it like filming in the water? Was that challenging?

Milligan: My gosh! For the first whole week there was a lot of me underwater alone and I remember on my first day I had to breathe underwater in this large swimming pool-size tank with scuba rigs. The director would call action and we’d be eight feet deep and they’d remove the rig, I’d swim and do our little scene and just off camera, we would go grab another rig to keep breathing. They gave us training, but my very first time I choked and I got scared because I couldn’t breathe properly. Everyone was looking at each other like, “Is this kid going to do it or what?” Then I thought, “Okay Dustin, time to buck up,” and it was pretty smooth sailing after that. But I never thought I would ever do action movies and I absolutely loved it.

What was it like working with mechanical sharks?

Milligan: I can’t tell you how scary these things were. The effects team that put these sharks together made them hyper-realistic; they used real shark teeth in their mouths. There were some instances where we had to physically fight with the shark and it was like a mechanical bull underwater. You can’t help but have a bit of a Terminator moment where you think this is where the rise of the machine begins and I’m about to be the first victim of the mechanical machine shark!

What was it like working with Sara Paxton and the cast? Did you bond onset?

Milligan: You know, there’s always potential for drama and for ego to tarnish a group shoot like this, but we all just sort of threw our “L.A.-ness” out the window. There’s a lot of group training that we had to do that allowed us to very quickly bond. We all had a lot of fun and a lot of us still keep in touch constantly to this day.

PRINCE HARRY OF WALES – Virgo, Sept. 15, 1984, London, England
 When Virgos are good, they are very, very good. But when they are bad, they are Charlie Sheen! His Royal Highness Henry Charles Albert David definitely has a wild-child side, what with punching paparazzi and reported bouts of drug and alcohol use. But his chart also shows he has every chance to grow out of it, with the support of his family. His granny, especially, would seem to have a soft spot for his cheeky charm. He also may choose to stay in the military, like his uncle Prince Andrew. It would provide the structure to develop more self-control and his promising leadership skills. Will he marry on-again-off-again girlfriend Chelsy Davy? His chart shows this playboy prince will not get serious about popping the question to anyone until 2014.

STAR STRUCK

What the stars have planned for you

—by Susan Kelly, astrologer

September

ARIES (March 21 – April 20)
 Step up or step down? After a month of delays and confusion, you can now make a major decision. Your work life will be upbeat and fulfilling, with more than one chance for recognition. Friends rally round with invites that make it hard to keep your mind on work. And a new romance is not out of the question.

TAURUS (April 21 – May 21)
 Get ready to star in your own true-life romance. Love scenes heat up and a call for commitment may take a surprising turn. Your career ambitions are stalled, though, and there's not much you can do but wait it out. Your big comeback is due – and soon. Enjoy a weekend getaway late in the month.

GEMINI (May 22 – June 21)
 Last month it seemed you were just puttering around, wasting time. Actually, you were gathering energy for this month's big push. Career success is due, especially around the 12th. Home is where you'll head for rest and regeneration. The second half of the month is best for stimulating and sparkling conversation.

CANCER (June 22 – July 22)
 Your favorite things come into focus: home and those near and dear. Lend a hand to someone younger heading off to school. You know just the right words to boost anyone's self-esteem. Mid-month, a hobby or pastime shows promise of becoming a cash cow. For now, just explore the new pastures it opens up.

LEO (July 23 – August 23)
 Apply the Law of Attraction early in the month, while you're a money magnet. Extra cash can arrive from unexpected sources. From the 18th on, expect to have ample physical energy. Venus also enters your house of friends mid-month. If you're single, one acquaintance could request an upgrade in your affections then.

VIRGO (August 24 – September 23)
 Your personal planet, Mercury, is now in direct motion. Plans can now go ahead, and you'll be able to convince others to see things your way. Some extra expenses could arise, especially if you have children. After the 14th, you could find yourself with some welcome extra cash, but try not to spend as much as you gain.

LIBRA (September 24 – October 23)
 Summer's over; back to work! The pace will be just short of frantic, and you'll have to make an extra effort to find some downtime. Spending time with friends becomes a priority from the 18th on. As well, the bread you earlier cast upon romantic waters comes in. You can expect loving acts to be repaid in kind.

SCORPIO (October 24 – November 22)
 Mars zooms into your career house on the 18th. Expect a fast-paced career scenario. Get clear about your goals before then and be ready to seize a sudden opportunity. A showdown with someone close may be inevitable late in the month. But when it's over at least you'll know where you stand.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 – December 21)
 You can run, but you won't want to hide this month. Your star is rising at work. And if you haven't found your ideal niche yet, it could happen now. The full moon on the 12th finds you happy to stay home. But once you hear from faraway friends, you'll enjoy taking a spur-of-the-moment trip late in the month.

CAPRICORN (December 22 – January 20)
 Travel could be in the cards early in the month. But if you stay at your desk you may finally get the rewards and recognition you crave. Make sure to get it in writing. The pace of your social life picks up, and your easy charm wins the day. A sudden attraction is riveting at month's end.

AQUARIUS (January 21 – February 18)
 You don't like to think about finances, but have a chance to learn some new strategies now. But good things are happening, with a windfall due as soon as the full moon on the 12th. Mars provides a welcome undercurrent of passion. If you're looking for a new rapport, don't take everyone at face value.

PISCES (February 19 – March 20)
 A full moon on the 12th in your sign makes you a star! Use your newfound influence to gain support for your cause – or to turn over a new leaf in your relationship. Mars stirs things up in the workplace from the 18th on. Keeping up the pace will be a challenge, but a snap once you set priorities.

Music news

HAMMER'S MUSIC BLOG

School is back in session, summer vacation is over, winter is just around the corner [sigh].

Summer may be gone, but it's so easy to relive 2011's great summer memories by adding summer's hottest tunes to your ipod!

This year's summer hit list included artists like Pitbull's "Give Me Everything" and LMFAO's "Party Rock Anthem" remind us of the good times dancing away on patios, in clubs and at summer weddings.

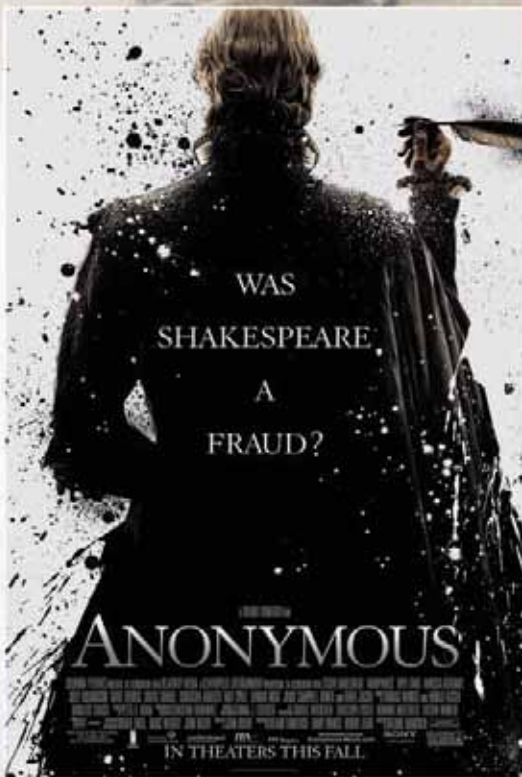

Songs like Bruno Mars' "The Lazy Song," and Adele's "Rolling In The Deep" let us relive the times relaxing in our friends backyard and staying up late having an in depth conversation with our best friends.

Music is amazing at evoking emotions. It's so easy to relive the great times of summer through our favourite songs. So when you are missing the summer months just think of your favourite song to bring you back to the best days of summer.

Sneak Peek

Charlize Theron, Kristen Stewart and Chris Hemsworth in Snow White and the Huntsman

Forget what you think you know about the classic Snow White fairy tale. In a new reimagining of the old story comes a breathtaking new vision from producer Joe Roth, who brought us Alice in Wonderland, with an all-star cast including Kristen Stewart, Charlize Theron and Chris Hemsworth.

In Snow White and the Huntsman, Stewart plays the only person in the land fairer than the evil queen (Theron), who is out to destroy her. But what the wicked ruler never imagined is that the one girl threatening her reign has been training in the art of war with a huntsman (Hemsworth) who was dispatched to kill her.

At this year's Comic-Con, Stewart and Theron played up their onscreen rivalry during a panel discussion. "She's going to give me a run for my money," Theron told fans, while Stewart playfully fueled the competition, saying, "And I'm ready for it, bitch! Let's go!"

Theron, who plays the Evil Queen, said that the film isn't your ordinary fairy tale. "Trust me, she's dark. I'm preparing to play a serial killer. Watch out, Kristen."

Hemsworth, of Thor fame, plays the Huntsman, while Sam Claflin, 25, plays Prince Charmant. Snow White and the Huntsman is set to hit theatres June 2012.
